NEW BOOKS

Of the approximately 200 new books received by the Army Medical Library each month a few are being chosen, more or less at random, for brief mention here.

BAKER, E.T. The Home Veterinarian's Handbook. A guide for handling emergencies in farm animals and poultry. New York, The Macmillan co., 1943, 191p.

The information contained in this photographically illustrated volume is given in brief paragraphs arranged in alphabetical order. An index is also provided for quick reference. What to do while awaiting expert assistance is clearly told.

BREDOW, MIRIAM. Handbook for the medical secretary. New York & London, McGraw - Hill Book co., inc., 1943, 283p.

Instruction in secretarial procedures and those aspects of medical practice with which a doctor's office assistant may have to deal, is given, together with a chapter on medical terminology and a glossary of medical terms and their definitions in language that a lay person can easily understand.

CLENDENING, LOGAN. Behind the doctor. New York, Alfred A. Knopf, 2nd edition revised, 1943, 473p.

The romance of medicine from the beginning of time , including the important discoveries in treatment and invention of instruments, as well as of the lives of the doctors and scientists is interestingly described. This is the background which makes the practice of medicine what it is today.

DE KRUIF, PAUL. Kaiser wakes the doctors. New York, Harcourt, Brace & co., 1943, 158p.

The industrial prepayment health care plan begun by Dr. Sidney Garfield in 1933 and later adopted at the Coulee Dam and other of the Kaiser undertakings is described. The 7 cents per day from the employees wages together with compensation insurance fees, pays the full cost including rapid amortization of the original investment. It is a plan by which the cost of taking care of the sick is paid for principally by those not sick. It can be started wherever there are industries and these health units become the centers in which doctors, freed from economic pressure, become team workers in the fight against disease and suffering.

GARESCHÉ, EDWARD FRANCIS. Ethics and the art of conduct for nurses. Philadelphia & London, W. B. Saunders co., 1944, 358p.

This text is intended for the special use of student nurses. Some subjects have been treated more briefly and others given greater prominence than might be expected in an ordinary text book on Ethics. The first part follows the accepted outlines of the science of Moral Philosophy. The second part discusses subjects of importance in the general field of Ethics on which nurses should be correctly informed.

HILLIARD, JESSAMINE AND CHARLES C. COGHLAN. Are you allergic? New York, M. Barrows & co., 1943, 248p.

The various manifestations of allergy from minor symptoms like wheezes, sneezes, belches and hives to hay fever, sinus and middle ear trouble, asthma, chronic eczema, headache and gastro-intestinal disturbances are described. These symptoms of sensitivity to one's environment and signals of maladjustment are discussed by the authors in a simple and instructive manner.

MACCURDY, J.T. The structure of morale. Cambridge, New York, The Macmillan co., 1943, 224p.

The lectures collected in this volume are on subjects which officers of the armed forces, sent in groups to the Psychological Laboratory in Cambridge, desired to have discussed. Part 1 is concerned with Fear, Part 2 with Morale and Part 3 with Problems of Organization. The morale of the Japanese, Chinese, Russians, Germans, Italians and British are each discussed in detail as is dictatorship, democracy, moral standards, nationalism, leadership, public service and many other related topics.

Therapeutic uses of adhesive plaster. An illustrated manual for physicians and surgeons. New Brunswick, N. J., Johnson and Johnson, 1944, 104p.

The technic of strappings which are the result of many years of experience by various authorities are described and illustrated in this manual.

MICROFILM COPYING

Army Medical Library
Washington, D.C.

The Library recognizes that microfilm copying is a service which publicly supported reference libraries may well perform on an equal basis with that provided for readers and by interlibrary loans. In the pursuance of such a policy, microfilms will be sent without charge in lieu of the loan of the books to those who prefer them or where books or journals cannot be loaned.

In addition to the service to individuals, to accredited research institutions and to the various governmental establishments, microfilm copying is being conducted with special reference to the needs of the widely scattered medical units of the Armed Forces. This emergency need accounts now for the major part of the microfilm activities of the Army Medical Library and they are expanding at a rapid rate.

The operation of Medicofilm Service, which has hitherto done microfilm copying in this Library at a cost just sufficient to pay its way, will be practically suspended beginning September 1, 1943.

Since microfilm copying is being done by this Library to promote medical research in its broadest aspects, orders may be sent direct by individuals or through the librarians of hospitals, medical schools and other institutions located in this country or elsewhere. In general, only the separate articles in the periodical literature will be copied. Long run copying may be done in special cases but will be subject to such modifications as the facilities of the Library and the present restricted supply of film, dictate.

In order to simplify the operation of the copying service, the use of order blanks will no longer be required. Titles and references to articles of which microfilm copies are desired should be written on letter paper and a carbon copy of each request should be included.

Governmental and emergency war establishments need not include postage where films are requested. In the case of all others who take advantage of this service in lieu of interlibrary loans, the franking privilege cannot be granted and medical librarians and individuals should send postage as follows:

For articles not exceeding 100 pages, send 1½¢
For articles not exceeding 400 pages, send 3¢
For articles over 400 pages, send 4½¢ stamps
